A CHANCE FOR COMPARISON.

"I do like the Show," said the city girl. "It makes me feel so small."

"That's rather an unusual reason for liking a thing," said her friend from the country.

"Yes, I suppose it does appeal to my generation. You know we city people do get rather a distorted idea about ourselves, and it is very good for us to have our ideas modified at times."

"But how does the Show do that?" asked her friend from the country.

"Oh! it tells us pretty plainly that we are not the only people in the land that matter in fact, that there are other small instances when it comes to the real essentials of life. Of course, we have our place in the scheme of things, but as a rule we are all rather inclined to think that we are the whole scheme, and then you country people come along with your wool and your wheat, your cattle and horses, and you put us into our proper place."

"The girl was right. It is good for us to stand apart at times, and take an unprejudiced view of ourselves in contrast to others. And every Show time brings us this opportunity, unless we will use it. So many of us are inclined to adopt a rather patronising attitude towards the country cousins, thinking they are 'just like us.'

"But still patronising, because they have not the same knowledge of men and affairs that we have. We smile indulgently at their garments, which are not of the latest cut; at their habits of sauntering along the streets, gazing with undisguised astonishment and admiration at all the new fashions; at their speech, which is a jumble of 'codswallop' and 'jargonism,' and 'wurbawls'—all in the kindest way, of course, but with a quiet amusement at their expense, because they are unsoothed in our city ways."

And then, suddenly, something happens to awaken us to the fact that the 'woollies' and the 'wurbawls' are shrewd, too. And then, again, when we are overawed by a hardly veiled criticism of a Sydney girl in her bobble-skirt, bucket-hat, and shrieking stockings, we are struck by the remark: "No, thank you; they're all like us. Give me something really sad, please!" For some obscure reason, tales of extreme poverty find great favour; books that tell of London slum-children are in great demand.

It has been said that these free libraries are unnecessary—that the children can get story-books and novels in different ways. The display of locally made jewellers shown by one of our leading jewellers is also a surprise. Within the last few years we have adopted Australian gems—tourmalines, peridots, and sapphires—and, of course, the opal and the pearl have always had their place among us. But we have never considered the possibility of the gems being worked up until recently, though, as the practice of remodelling and re-constructing should be a warning to us to consider the probable needs of the years to come. But we do not seem to have learned from experience, and we go on in our penny-wise-pound-foolish habit of make-shift and substitute, cherishing only our own immediate and short-lived pleasure, which the years must bring. It is the same in town and country, the men who cut down the forests, taking no pains to replace the timber, having taken their toll from this generation; and we in our turn are taking it out of future generations by our destruction of bird life in the country and trees in the suburbs.

The touring, a stone of many colours, is very much in favour at the moment, and it is generally sold as "Oriental," not as Australian. Amongst the exhibits in this week's display is a signet ring made of a pink tourmaline with the crest cut into the stone, which is a great improvement on the old bloodstone signet.

The Women's Patriotic Club has taken a definite step in the direction of a residential club, and will now take up members to larger premises in a couple of months. The club has taken one of these two big houses in Bligh-street, where there will be plenty of room for bedrooms as well as for more sitting rooms than the members have at present. The club has been formed into a limited company, of which only members are shareholders, and under the new arrangement it will probably exert more power than at present. There is no doubt as to the need of a Women's Residential Club in Sydney, and by their new movement the Patriotic Club will supply a much-needed want.

THE LOST IPHIGENIA.

The young man had not chosen such as he had done at Madame Costanza's, and take his departure. He could not, however, bring himself to leave without a final word.

"Look here," he said, "I have just come with a slap on the top of the piano, 'the life is that address will always find me.' And if ever you wanted me I'd come to you, I'll tell you now. She must leap and plunge and she with a high heart."

The girl, in her young hardness, smiled deviously. And yet she was conscious of a faintly, but inauspicious emotion, about her heart.

"You might call it love," you know, you never can tell until it comes along. And then he added with a wistful air, "You can not help my being your friend, you know."

CHAPTER V.

"Mes filles," said Madame Costanza, addressing her first morning class, that she had more advanced and promising pupils, "I have had many, but Dr. Letitia is the best."

All the lady did was to smile. Like Mrs. Siddons, it would have been hardly possible for her to utter the most trivial words without striking a note of pathos.

Until Mrs. Siddons, there was nearly always humour even in her tragic pronouncements.

It was one of the reasons why her pupils adored her. She was not only full of wit and warmth, affect despair, or scathe with scorn; but the keen hawk's-eye had always that saving grace in the mirth which made her seem far from the ordinary outcast.

The dramatic form in which life presented itself to her added enormously to its interest for those who had the pleasure of her company.

She often told her listeners with the story of a salade that she had prepared for her mother.

She stood in the middle of the room, surrounded by the disconsolate row, and a chuckle.

"I have had every fault, that Lothair. But I had credited him with a single redeeming quality. Yes, he is a monster. I would have given up my life to keep my son safe. What long little time I had, and mine! And our teeth were chattering. Oh, dear! All is not lost; we will consult each other, and—"

Yester evening, the teacher's mien, her grand voice of commanding presence, the gesture which accompanied it, were warrantable.

The girls, who had risen from their seats with bright smiles of welcome, had all been won over by her pale as with a sense of impending fate.

The name of this girl was Sarotta Venec.

"Yes, the music," proceeded the singing master, after a due pause. "I have received a telegram from the great Dr. Lothair—he is in Paris. And he says: 'I want an Iphigenia—will sing, will sing.' And so, I have ordered little cakes from Rumpelmeier—'

"—for you are just adorable!" said Sady to her neighbour.

The curtains were pulled, the light turned on, and the dismal October afternoon that had been so dreary, was dispelled, and Madame Costanza sat her down to it, beckoning up the edges of her dress.

"We will, if you please, begin with the aria of the 'Iphigenia' that teacher has with Come, now, Hedwig—a bold attack, if you please."

Disorders of Digestion

The soothing, healing and tonic properties of Angier's Emulsion eminently adapt it to the relief and cure of stomach and bowel disorders of a catarrhal, fermentative, ulcerative or tubercular nature. Simple and harmless, this remedy exercises its soothing, lubricating effects throughout the entire alimentary tract and is therefore of value wherever the inflammation may be seated. It arrests fermentation, checks bacterial growth and promotes normal healthy action of the bowels. Simple though its action may be, Angier's Emulsion has proved a most efficacious remedy in a wide variety of disorders such as gastric or intestinal catarrh, gastritis, ulcer, mucous colitis, chronic indigestion, nervous dyspepsia, chronic constipation, etc. It has proved its value in many obscure and obstinate cases and is emphatically worthy of trial.

ANGIER'S EMULSION

TESTIMONIAL FROM A DOCTOR.

I advocate strongly the use of Angier's Emulsion in all cases of flatulent dyspepsia, intestinal indigestion, and in that terrible complaint—mucous colitis. I have seen, both by myself and as a consultant, several very successful cases of this description in which Angier's Emulsion was the remedy. (Sd.)—M.D., M.B., etc.

CATARRH OF THE STOMACH.

Dear Sirs.—I was suffering from catarrh of the stomach for a period of over four months and lost 16 lb. in weight. I used to have severe pains in the stomach after meals and mouthfuls of water would come up and I could only get relief when the food itself came up. I decided to try Angier's Emulsion, and the first week after I began taking it I gained 4 lb., and soon went up to my usual weight. I am now able to eat my food without fear of the awful pains, and shall always feel most grateful for the relief I have gained from the Emulsion. (Signed) T. LOVELL.

FOR WEAK DIGESTION.

Hazel Dell, Crossover, Gippsland, Vic.

Dear Sirs.—My little daughter was suffering from weak digestion and simply wasting away. After taking part of a bottle of Angier's there was a marvellous change, and by the time it was finished she was quite a different child. She is now able to eat and digest anything. It appears to have quite restored the digestive organs and she is getting plump and strong, whereas before she was just a skeleton. You are welcome to use this acknowledgment, as I would be pleased to be the means of inducing mothers to try it for their delicate children.

(Signed) EMA NEALE COX.

FOR CATARRH AND INDIGESTION.

Dear Sirs.—It is now about five years since Angier's Emulsion was recommended to me by a doctor, and I have found it invaluable for indigestion and catarrh as well as for toning up the system. I was very much run-down when I first took it, but improved immediately, and gained in weight 15 lb. in twelve weeks. I have recommended the Emulsion to several of my friends for various complaints, with good results. It proved especially good for a friend who suffers from inflammation of the bowels, who was completely cured and has been at work regularly ever since.

THE COAL VEND.

SERIOUS CHARGES.

COUNSEL GOES INTO FIGURES.

"CRUSHING A COMPETITOR."

The charges against the coal vend and certain steamship companies were continued in the Darlinghurst Courthouse yesterday before Mr. Justice Isaacs.

Mr. Isaacs, continuing his opening address, said that the combine was formed to raise and maintain the rated price of coal.

For that purpose Mr. Newman was of the opinion that the coal companies associated with the coal proprietors had combined with them in a friendly spirit. It would be unfair to say that the nature of the combine to extract the maximum was the price of coal. Under the agreement the coal would be affected in two ways, by either party to it might be declared an excessive price, or it might be thought that the parties to the combine had sought to injure the steamship owners.

In examining the dealing of each company, it must be remembered that the prices were agreed upon for the sake of convenience.

Your Honor, will remember that the meetings in Melbourne, which brought the steamship owners and the colliery proprietors together, were held on April 13. There were approved by the vend on April 13. On the latter date the two parties were working together.

The first meeting on April 13, was not to be taken to change the South Australian railway contract.

MEXICAN REVOLT.

QUESTION OF INTERVENTION.

BRITAIN'S ATTITUDE.

WASHINGTON, April 18.

Mr. James Bryce, British Ambassador, and President Taft, have been holding lengthy conferences on the recent landing of British bluejackets at San Quintin, Mexico, as well as the proposed Anglo-American arbitration treaty, was discussed.

The press has published a statement that Mr. Bryce urged joint intervention by Britain and the United States in regard to Mexico.

This is not believed to be true, as such an action would indicate the abandonment of the Monroe doctrine.

It is fully realised in Government circles that United States intervention in Mexico will mean war.

President Taft is inclined to leave it to Congress to decide whether there shall be any intervention or not, and he does not intend to send any message to Congress on the subject, pending further development.

ATTACK ON JUAREZ EXPECTED.

EL PASO (Texas), April 18.

Another rebel attack on Juarez is expected, and the troops are throwing up fortifications.

BATTLE OF AGUAPRIETA.

REBEL LEADER CROSSES BORDER.

DOUGLAS (Arizona), April 18.

Bullets rained into this city during the recent battle between 1600 Federal troops and 1000 rebels at Aguaprieta, just across the frontier.

Two hundred Federals are reported to have been killed. The extent of the rebel losses is unknown, but the battle was indecisive.

Several Douglas inhabitants were killed by flying bullets.

After the battle Garcia, the rebel leader, crossed the frontier and surrendered to the United States forces. The reason for his action is unknown.

FRENCH POLITICS.

M. JAURES AND THE GOVERNMENT.

PARIS, April 18.

At a congress of Collectivists and Socialists, M. Jaures, the Socialist leader in the Chamber of Deputies, applauded the policy of M. Briand, the law Preudhomme, that declared the subordination of the railway companies to the Government demands regarding the reinstatement of the men who took part in the recent strike would mean a great victory to the workers.

The State employees who took part in the railway strike were reinstated by the Government with the exception of those who were convicted of sabotage, and those persons in an industrial strike and anarchist attitude. The Government urged the railway companies to follow the example of the State in this matter in the interest of social justice. The railwaymen, however, refused to reinstate the men who had been dismissed, while in their employ, many members of various railway boards declaring they would not do so. M. Morris still urged the Government to follow the course he had suggested, but in vain. Then he declared that "we must have all." The Government, he said, did not possess any weapon of compulsion, but if the railwaymen were to be unavailing, they would ask the Chamber of Deputies to give them the necessary power to deal with the companies. The Chamber of Deputies Saturday expressed its confidence in the Government in regard to the matter.

The combatants stripped to the waist, then fastened themselves to posts to prevent their running away. Having done this they beat each other with the hairy wools until the horrified girl ran for help.

Subsequently the combatants were discovered senseless. The duel was declared a draw.

CHAMPAGNE TROUBLE.

This will cause a by-election for South Birmingham, owing to his eldest son, Viscount Morpeth (Unionist) succeeding to the title.

A LAD DEFEATS WILDING.

PARIS, April 18.

W. Laurentz, aged 16 years, defeated A. Wilding in the finals of the French open lawn tennis championship (covered courts), the scores being:—4-6, 4-6, 13-11, 8-6.

To defeat the redoubtable Wilding is in itself a notable feat, but for a youth to do after being down two sets constitutes a truly remarkable achievement. Wilding, a Frenchman, was beaten in the first set by Laurentz, and again in the second.

They have usually attracted the attention of the leading English players. Amongst the others who have been beaten by Wilding are: F. Morris, J. G. Ritchie, and M. Decugis. The last was successful in 1905, 1906, 1907, and last year Decugis won the doubles also last year in partnership with Germon.

INDEPENDENT LABOUR.

BIRMINGHAM CONFERENCE.

PARLIAMENTARY PARTY CRITICISED.

LONDON, April 18.

The Independent Labour Conference was opened at Birmingham yesterday.

Mr. W. Anderson, in his presidential address, declared that Sir Edward Grey's recent speech on international arbitration shed a ray of light on the future, heralding a new dawn. He emphasised the need for an Anglo-German agreement. The present Government, he declared, had been induced by scares and grossly imaginative estimates of Germany's shipbuilding. "The most uncouth jingo," he added, "would not have outstripped Mr. R. McKenna, the First Lord of the Admiralty."

There was an animated discussion upon a resolution instructing the Labour members of the House of Commons to vote on every subject, regardless of the consequences to the Ministry.

Many blamed the Labour party in the House for not supporting Mr. Keir Hardie's proposal in regard to the conduct of the police during the Cambrian coal strike.

Mr. J. Ramsay MacDonald, leader of the Parliamentary party, explained that they were afraid to censure Mr. Winston Churchill for fear they would endanger the Government.

The debate was adjourned.

MANUFACTURES WEEK.

IN THE WINDOWS.

EXTENSIVE AND VARIED DISPLAYS.

"Shopping week for Australian goods" commenced in earnest yesterday, and everywhere there was a great demand for various kinds of all descriptions guaranteed Australian-made of Australian materials.

Warm, woolly blankets, one of the greatest uses to which Australia's greatest product is put, were on view in many windows, piled up in great masses. Furs, incidentally, are also extensively made up, exhibit in one establishment showing what can be done in this respect. The wool in its various stages of the drawing process was placed beside the finished goods in several windows to add to the interest.

Among the various special exhibits one firm had a display of straw in the different stages of being made into hats. A comprehensive view of Australian manufactures is to be had at one window almost the whole of the windows are filled with exhibits of boots, furniture, saddlery, portmanteaus, picture frames, dresses, pottery, basketware, damask, etc., the raw materials being placed beside them and their application shown by cards and photos.

Furniture-making is an important and growing branch of industry. Some samples are on view in the streets. The windows displayed a number of articles manufactured from spotted gum, to prove that the wood is specially adapted for artistic use. Bedsteads, bedsteads made and mainly equipped, are being shown under the "Made in Australia" card in more than a few windows, together with the metal from which they are cast.

An ingenious arrangement in a George-street window drew a large crowd throughout the day, the main attraction, the march of procession, being a continuous performance, with the portraits of prominent men in arts, crafts, and politics included in it.

Genie, rich and varied, and collected, form a unique exhibit by a lapidary. Australia's wealth in pearls, opals, and other precious stones is here amply demonstrated, the glittering rays containing the articles being fascinating in the extreme. Another firm has an exhibit of locally-made pottery of good design and artistic colouring, and also of brushware of every kind. Locally製旅行袋、雨傘、刷子等，展示了在一個窗口。

The Australian Tanning Club's fixture was run off yesterday at Victoria Park, in beautiful weather; and though the attendance was large, the A.T.C. Handicap of 100 was well won by Belmont's St. Leger, who, behind a half-brother to the Melbourne Cup winner Apollo, fetched $20 guineas, and a full sister to the Caulfield Cup winner Flavinius brought 80 guineas.

MONETARY AND COMMERCIAL.

FINANCIAL.

THE EMPIRE IN FIGURES.

We are apt to compare the United Kingdom with the German Empire or the United States—our chief trading rivals.

A blue book has been issued, containing the seventh number of the Statistical Abstract of the British Empire, which shows that the total area of the Empire in 1909 was 11,621,000 square miles, and the total population, according to the census of 1901, was 353,376,000, being 10 per cent. more than in 1900, as compared with 349,749,000 in 1900. The total inter-national trade in 1909 was £2,000,000,000, and the total value of foreign and inter-national trade was £1,051,000,000 in 1909, as compared with £931,000,000 in 1900. The figures relating to the Empire in 1909 show that the total tonnage of the tonnage on the register made a total of 12,348,000 tons, of which the United Kingdom contributed 404,511 tons, the Commonwealth of Canada, 372,961 tons; Britain, 39,625 tons; New Zealand, 1,000 tons; Australia, 1,000 tons; and the West India Islands, 1,207 tons. The total net tonnage of the British Empire in 1909 was 10,944,662 tons.

Some more striking figures. The quantity of oil produced in the Empire in 1909 made a total of 308,810,000 tons, the United Kingdom contributing 77,411,000 tons; Britain, 10,526,000 tons; and New South Wales, 1,000 tons. The total quantity in 1905 was 201,600,000 tons. The total value of coal produced in 1909 was £161,200,000, and in 1905 £151,000,000. The total value of iron and steel produced in 1909 was 12,527,000 tons, and in 1905 12,256,000 tons. The total production of pig-iron amounted to 10,235,000 tons in 1909, as against 11,447,000 tons in 1905. The total production of cotton amounted to 1,200,000 tons, of which Britain contributed 631,000 tons. In 1905 the total production of wheat in the British Empire was 314,100,000 bushels.

ANOTHER IN THE U.S.A.

A writer in an American publication on "The Maxims and Crusts of the Empire" gives a graphic account of how wool grows in the Empire. Here are some extracts:

"Not long ago I bought a pair of 'wall-hanging' tweeds, and to test the texture of the wool, I cut a piece off. The experiment is very simple, and the results are equally simple. It is all 'wall,' the shawl makes short work of it, no sooner is it left after the cutting, than it is all gone."

Then the writer gives the results of numerous experiments, and concludes: 'wall-hanging' may mean, what was the case in most instances, no wool at all."

AMERICAN SHODDY.

Confidentially, this state of affairs comes from another source. A New York stockbroker asked a fellow-passenger on the White Star liner, who hailed from the West Riding, and had been connected with the shipping business there, if he could get him a job. All he could say was, "This is all 'wall,'" the shawl makes short work of it, no sooner is it left after the cutting, than it is all gone."

This same experiment will show similar proliferation in many of the blouses and much of the men's wear, and in the case of the shawls, as well as all else. And instances of so-called 'woollen' garments, which were the case in most instances, no wool at all."

The writer goes on to say, "It was a good idea, and was the case in most instances, no wool at all."

WORLD'S PETROLEUM OUTPUT.

The output of petroleum in 1910 reached 12,000,000 metric tons, or 400,000 barrels, or about 27,000,000 metric tons, or 800,000 barrels, or 12,500,000 tons in 1909, and 12,000,000 tons in 1907, and 16,750,000 tons in 1906. The total output of petroleum in 1909 was 9,220,000 tons, as against 9,12,000 tons in 1908, the bulk of which was furnished by the U.S.A., and 4,000,000 tons in 1909, and the total production of wheat in the British Empire was 314,100,000 bushels.

BREADSTUFFS.

There was still a holiday time in the wheat market. There were a few lots put under offer, which they managed matters showed that they did not care for, and the lot did not sell.

The price of wheat, at 10s per cwt., was agreed that no gentleman in England would bear such a sum, but that a better one could be bought elsewhere, and the gentleman, who lived in a town in New Zealand, bought from the local stores their share for exactly similar goods. It was 4 dollars, or less, or just three times the cost in England.

TRADE IN SUEZ-STRAIT.

Mr. A. P. Foster, Jarrow, says:

"You will notice that the commercial people of our city if you successfully exercise your influence to bring about a true saving method in the handling of grain, you will be able to save a great deal of money."

The company's clerk here to the dock, Prof. Roy Dowling, who bears name of his father, Mr. Roy Dowling, who has all his life been a student of the law, and has been a member of the University of Cambridge, is at the moment developing commercial sense, and longer divides industry or commerce. In some British works (by a former student) he has shown a remarkable knowledge among the heads of departments, and among very men who, having gained knowledge of science, mechanics, and chemistry, have graduated in law, and done something in the way of invention, labour-saving methods, and webering, and so on. His knowledge of science, mechanics, and chemistry, has given him a decided advantage over other men, and it is to be hoped that he will be successful in his studies, and that he will be a good man in the world."

The company's manager, Mr. J. G. Foster, says:

"We are doing our best to make our work as efficient as it can now. Labourers, mechanics, and farmers, who use ready-made products, are receiving practically no value for their services, and the cost of living is high. We may add that the retailer, but not the manufacturer, holds the balance of power, and the price of bread is too high."
